Dear sir,

Following are the basic similar points provided by Mr. Mallikarjun, Mr. Akhilesh and Mr. Narender, Engineer after discussing with them separately :

1. Lack of co-ordination
2. Unable to distribute and execute the given works within a team (unproductive)
3. Disappointment in team
4. Lack of communication within team (Redundancy)
5. Not following the schedules, companies circulars and procedures
6. Harassing Mr. Dilip Engineer on personal grounds
7. Tiles and electrical contractors doesn't want to work with him
8. Scolded Mounika, Sravan, Dilip, etc., and back off employees using foul language
9. Depending on juniors
10. Always blaming others this shows negative self esteem because he don't own blame of his own mistakes because he is not comfortable with himself enough to accept that it's his fault as a Project Incharge.
11. Not thinking about the work to move on

Conclusion : he is not productive to search his own past to find out what caused his faults in work ; he cannot handle his team to run our project smoothly.

For your information,

Regards,

Jai Kumar
